

About Valerie Raudonis

VALERIE RAUDONIS

is a native of Nashua, New Hampshire. In her high school yearbook, she wrote...

My dreams flow
like a rushing river
beyond my reach
yet still in sight....

"What I felt then, I still feel today," says the author. However, the poet that is Valerie Raudonis lay dormant for several decades until her sea winds of change stirred her to share some of her feelings here in her first book, Sea Glass Secrets.

Valerie is a devoted mother, a daughter, a mediator, and she meditates. After earning her law degree, she returned to Nashua to establish a practice as a family attorney. Known to her friends as Val, she has been an active civic leader, having served on numerous boards of directors and in other community leadership roles. Valerie regularly attends and presents her work at The Poets Corner authors' group in Nashua.
